President's Message

Welcome back from your summer traveling. We're looking forward to an exciting fall, including behind-the-scenes preparation for the 1998 Statewide Festival, which will again be in San Francisco. The Treasurer's Ball will again be held in Sebastapol, due to continuing repairs to the roof at the Sonoma Veterans Facility. I, for one, hope to include an antique shop or two on my way to the festival. I remember last year's trip fondly—the autumn light on the countryside, as well as the great dancing we enjoyed.

The Fresno Harvest Festival will be another highlight of our dancing this fall. I'm looking forward to working, and dancing, with you this 97/98 dance season.

Best Regards,
Barbara

It's Thanksgivingsko Kolo Time!

Yes, folks, it's time to dance off all that turkey, stuffing and pie at the 46th annual Kolo Festival, to be held Thursday through Saturday, November 27-29, 1997, at the San Francisco Russian Center.

This year Michael Ginsburg will teach dances from the former Yugoslavia. He has taught at many camps, including Maine Folk Dance Camp, Stockton Folk Dance Camp and the Balkan Music and Dance Workshops at Buffalo Gap and Mendocino. In addition to dancing and teaching, Michael is an accomplished musician and the director of the Zlatne Uste Balkan Brass Band. Three of his numerous trips to the Balkans were with the band as guests of Yugoslavia to participate in the Annual Gathering of Brass Bands in Guča, Central Serbia

Yvonne Hunt, after a fourteen year sojourn in Greece, is now living and teaching in the Seattle area. In addition to her teaching Greek language and dance, she is a research associate at the Centre for Asia Minor Studies in Athens and also continues her independent fieldwork and research on traditional Greek dance. Her book, Traditional Dance in Greek Culture, was published by the Centre in 1996. Yvonne will teach dances from her area of specialty, Greek Macedonia.

We are pleased to present Tanya Kostova to the North American Balkan dance community. A native of the Plovdiv area, she was soloist with and one of the original members of Ensemble Trakia, holds an MA in Choreography, Stage Directing and Educational Arts from the Academy of Music and Dance Arts in Plovdiv, has presented both radio and television programs on Bulgarian dance and song, and has many years experience in teaching, directing and choreography. Tanya has done original research all over Bulgaria, but her specialty is the songs and dances of the Rodop and Sredna Gora regions.

István Zoltán Szabó (Kovacs) will teach Hungarian couple and non-partner dances, in separate sessions. Between 1973 and 1991, he danced with the Balassy Bálint Folk Ensemble in Békéscsaba, Hungary, the Hungarian Ballet Institute in Budapest, was principal dancer with the Hungarian Army Dance Ensemble and the Hungarian State Folk Ensemble, and received the Dancer of the Year award from the Hungarian Army Dance ensemble in 1986. He and his dance partner, Rosina Didyk, are currently Co-Directors of Dance with the Aman Folk Ensemble.

Alma Franulović Plančić and Binki Franulović Spahi (Croatian and Dalmatian singing). From early childhood, Alma and Binki grew up hearing the older women singing, first in Vela Luka, Croatia, and later in the Croatian community of Anacortes, Washington, where their family settled after World War II. In 1981, they formed Ruže Dalmatinke, this year's featured tamburica band. The sisters have sung together since childhood; they not only absorbed the songs of their elders, but also have studied the songs of other parts of Southeastern Europe, including Bosnia, Macedonia, Romania and Bulgaria.

Friday evening begins with a sing-along led by Alma and Binki and Ruže Dalmatinke; Saturday evening will start with a Concert of Music and Dance; both evenings will continue with live music for dancing provided by Ruže Dalmatinke from Seattle, and fine local groups including Edessa, Vasil Bebelevkov and friends, Mary and Ferenc Tobak, Anoush Ellas, Brass Band, and Rumeli.

As if this weren't enough, there will also be folklore presentations, good food, vendors, an opening party to recorded music Thursday night, great music for listening in the Kafana Friday and Saturday nights, old friends to see and new friends to welcome. So pack your dancing footwear and finery, bring your friends, and come to San Francisco for a great Thanksgiving weekend! For more information, pre-reg forms, etc, contact Joanne Splivalo at (510) 652-7859 or (800) 730-5615, or write to: Kolo Festival, c/o P O Box 20181, Piedmont, CA 94620-0181.

Dancing on the Internet

by Barbara Bruxvoort (bbrux@wco.com)

Potpourri – This month is a potpourri of things I turned up in a varied ramble around the World Wide Web. My first thought was to delve again into the health aspects of dancing, and so along that line, I came upon the American Dance Therapy Association (<http://www.adta.org/>), a professional organization supporting research and education in Dance/Movement Therapy.

I'm always interested to hear of careers open to dancers, and this field intrigued me with its approach to physical, mental and emotional healing through dance. For a longer definition of Dance/Movement Therapy, go to <http://www.prairienet.org/~dmb/infodmt.html>. The American Dance Therapy Association accredits programs at various universities, including Antioch Northeast College (<http://www.antiochne.edu/academics/appsy/4appsydance.html>), and UCLA (where the website description isn't very interesting).

Moving on from there, I had recently read a short story about a Polynesian dancer which spurred me on to finding out more about Polynesian culture and dance. The following is what I turned up.

Polynesia, Polynesia!—A Cultural Heritage Society <http://www.punawelewewe.com/polynesia2/> Based in San Jose, Calif., Polynesia, Polynesia! seeks to preserve and perpetuate Polynesian culture on the mainland. Their website has some lovely pictures of performers at a recent event (<http://www.punawelewewe.com/polynesia2/holulu1996/ballpictures.htm>) as well as an interesting article about the use of nature symbols to express emotional concepts in Hawaiian song composed by Queen Kapi'olani for her husband, King David Kalakaua (<http://www.punawelewewe.com/polynesia2/holulu1996/gentle.htm>).

Te Mau Tamari'i A Tiare Polynesian Dance Troupe <http://www.geocities.com/Broadway/5966/kids.html> This site has pictures and information about a California-based group which performs both Ori (Tahitian) and Hula (Hawaiian) dance.

Did you know that you should never sit on a Hawaiian Quilt? To find out more about the traditions and patterns of Hawaiian quilts, see the Hawaiian Quilting Page (<http://www.poakalani.com/>) and the traditions section of that site (<http://www.poakalani.com/quilt/trad.htm>).

While I'm dwelling on things Hawaiian, I shouldn't fail to mention the International Folk Dancers of Hawaii. So next time you plan a Honolulu escape, take a look at their web page (<http://www.pixi.com/~burson/>) for dancing in the park on a Saturday night.

And lastly, as an appendix to last month's article on Japanese Folk Dance, here is (http://www.uwosh.edu/home_pages/faculty_staff/earns/niblo.html) a story of how an American Folk Dance—square dancing—was introduced to Japan by a Provincial Education Officer in Nagasaki during the American occupation. That same officer returned to Japan in 1981 to participate in the twenty-fifth anniversary ceremony of the founding of the Japanese National Folk Dance Federation.

Rozelaar

(The Netherlands)

Rozelaar, meaning Rose-tree or Rosebush, was originally introduced by Elly Olderaan from The Netherlands. The choreography for Rozelaar (ROH-zeh-lahr) is based on material that she collected during her many dance research expeditions throughout the southern province of Brabant. Jaap Leegwater taught it at a lawn party during the 1997 University of the Pacific Stockton Folk Dance Camp.

Folk Dancers We Should Remember

by Larry Getchell

Stan Valentine

In selecting worthy people for our column, Folk Dancers We Should Remember, it is quite possible to overlook some who are very deserving. For this reason the writer would greatly appreciate it if a reader has such a person in mind they let us know. If they have knowledge of that folk dancer's history, this information would be most helpful.

Our selection for this month's column is a fellow a bit difficult not to remember. During a period approaching 50 years it is doubtful there are many folk dancers in Northern California who at one time or another haven't done a square dance to the call of Stan Valentine. Square dancing has been and will always be an important segment of folk dance programs. In that regard over the years Stan has been the folk dancer's perfect square dance caller.

It's time to take a good look at this fun-loving talented fellow and decide what it is that make him tick. Borrowing from an article written by George N. Cash during the Fifties, Stan Valentine's early life chart was to "Help people be happy through dancing." Prior to August, 1944, Stan waded through such terpsichorean treats as the "Big Apple", "Black Bottom", and the "Jitterbug". That August '44 date marked his joining the Concord Allemande's Folk Dance Club. Three years later he was elected their President. From that time on his folk dance career started expanding like a snowball rolling down hill. In 1953 he was elected President of the Diablo Council of Folk Dance Clubs. He was a Folk Dance Council Representative for the Diablo Promenaders for ten years or more.

During all this time Stan worked on his square dance calling technique. As early as 1947 he was delighting folk dances with his own styling of such favorites as "Barnacle Bill the Sailor", "Cotton Eyed Joe", "Bingo", "Chinatown" and "Marianne". Was he popular? He quit counting after guest calling over 300 different folk and square dance parties. Some of these were located in far away places such as Oregon, Washington, Nevada, and Salt Lake City. He was calling on an average of four nights a week, travelling nearly 1000 miles a month to do it. And - that was during the decades of the Fifties.

I personally met Stan and his wife, Edith, in 1947 following an evening Festival in Albany. In the company of Dave and Lou Boyce, my wife and I paid a visit to an El Cerrito Irish pub, O'Sullivans, for a wee bit of refreshments. Dave introduced us. Little did I realize this would be the first of many hand shakes over the years.

Stan never aspired for high office in the Folk Dance Federation of California, didn't have the time. However, Bev Wilder appointed him Festival Coordinator and succeeding Federation Presidents Frank Kane, Don Spier, and John Mooney, all requested him to continue in a position he filled so well.

Year after year, when a square caller was needed for a special occasion, the name of Stan Valentine seemed always to come to the forefront and he seldom said "no". Stan never saw a mike he didn't like nor a dance he didn't try. We have a belated thanks for Stan dating back to the Fifties and Sixties. It was during the 18 years we conducted a folk dance week at the Oakland Recreation Feather River Family Camp just outside of Quincy. Here following a week of folk dancing during the month of August, we closed out with a Saturday night "Moonlight Festival". Stan made the trip on several occasions and helped to make the evening a big success. You didn't have to ask him twice to call a square.

If all this sounds like Stan has taken a deserving retirement from continued activity in folk dance and square dance calling, get that out of your mind. He and Edith have been married for 61 years. They have two daughters, four grandchildren, an seven great grandchildren. He and Edith still ballroom dance, square dance and folk dance with Max Horn now and then. Stan still does a little special calling as well as teach folk dance and square dance for a Senior Citizen group once a week. Stan says, "Not bad for a fellow who has reached age 86 and is STILL GOING STRONG."

COUNCIL CLIPS

SACRAMENTO COUNCIL

The Sacramento Council is busy attempting to once again get the newly-renovated Memorial Auditorium for one day (Sunday) since the fee is very high. They are also trying to get financial aid to at least pay a portion of the cost. They will have the usual two-day Festival but the Saturday Night portion would be in a separate location to be announced later. Past President, Greg Mitachell, was working on getting the auditorium before he left office and the new President, Irene Oxford, is continuing the effort. Watch for further developments.—Nadine Mitchell

GREATER EAST BAY FOLK DANCE COUNCIL

Berkeley Folk Dancers - Berkeley Folk Dancers started their new beginners class in September but you can still join. They meet Mondays at 7:45 PM. Teachers are Cheryl Caraian 484-5136; Judy Stonefield 655-3074; Norm Gelbart 525-0174; Barry Gordon 526-6580. The objective is to have FUN; make FRIENDS; EXERCISE; & master DANCE SKILLS.

FOLK DANCE NEWS

HOLIDAY CAMP – Returns to Southern California. Diki Shields and Richard Duree have revived the popular Holiday Camp, to be held this year on December 26–29 at Pilgrim Pines in Southern California's beautiful San Bernardino Mountains. The theme will be "nostalgia." There will be plenty of dancing on a nice wooden floor in a relaxed schedule to allow time for visiting and hiking in the beautiful setting. Cost of the camp is $235 per person with a $75 deposit before October 15, and $245 after that date. For information or to register, call Diki at 714-458-7825 or Richard at 714-641-7450. You can find them on the world wide web at DanceTraditions@msn.com.

RAGTIME DANCING – Enjoy 3 days of classical and modern Ragtime and vintage music at the West Coast Ragtime Festival, in Sacramento on November 21-23. There will be dancing, music and special seminars. For festival information, call Deborah Gale at the West Coast Ragtime Society 916-758-6697 or Susan Larsen at 916-758-7200.

HAWAII '50 – The Folk Dance Event of 1998, come celebrate the 50th birthday of Yves Moreau and his friend

Hironobu Senzaki, July 16-19, 1998, in Honolulu, Hawaii. Oh, it's a long story on how this event was conceived and planned, but it will be a great time for all, including guest teachers, music, dancing and lots of fun in a beautiful island paradise setting. For more information of this event (which is limited to the first 250 to register) call 514-659-9271 or Fax to 514-659-9377.

A POURPARLER – What is A Pourparler? It is a great weekend event for people who teach in K-12 schools or folk dance education courses. It will be held October 16-19 in Evanston, Illinois and is sponsored by the National Folk Organization. This will be a wonderful opportunity for people who do this vital work to get together and learn and share. For more information, call Sanna Longden at 847-328-7793 or e-mail her at SannaMars@aol.com.

ART FOR PEACE – International Dance and Music Group is opening its doors to the public. Every first and third Wednesday of the month they will have International Folk Dance classes taught by their Director, Eser Ayanoglu or other guest teachers. The group meets in Palo Alto. For more information, call Carol Leitner at 408-971-9420.
