PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

I HOPE TO SEE YOU AT THE HERITAGE FESTIVAL!

By Loui Tucker, loui@loutitucker.com

Note the date!

First of all and most importantly the Heritage Festival is January 15-16, 2010. [Due to a mixup, Let's Dance! published last year's information as well as this year's information in the December issue.] Everyone is hoping that the clarification comes in time to get dancers to this dance event on the correct weekend. Spread the word, put Heritage Festival flyers at your dance classes and clubs, tell your dancing friends, and make sure we all gather to dance together on the same dates!

This is NOT your Father's Heritage Festival.

The Heritage Festival Committee has made some significant changes to this long-standing event with the hope that more dancers will be enticed to attend and everyone will have a great time.

(1) More requests. From the festival survey results last year it was clear dancers prefer requests during the evening parties. Both the Friday night and Saturday night parties at the Heritage Festival will include 50% requests. Note: If you plan to request a dance and you fear the music might not be available, contact me at loui@loutitucker.com and we'll make sure the music is available.

(2) No MCs. In past years, Federation festivals had many MCs lined up to announce the dance names along with the formation and country of origin. At one time it was considered an honor for dance leaders and teachers to be an MC at Federation events, but this is no longer the case. It also takes time away from the dancing itself, so the Heritage Festival Committee has decided to end that tradition. Two dance leaders each evening will be responsible for running the dance program.

(3) Computers. Most of the music will be provided via computer with the hope that this will mean less "down time" between dances and a larger collection of music from which to choose. The Committee has even worked out a way to display the name of and information about each dance being played on a screen.

(4) Price. Although some of the prices have increased, financial assistance is available for anyone who might not be able to attend because of the price. No dancer will be turned away for lack of funds!

(5) Survey. There will be another survey available at the Heritage Festival so those who attend can let the Committee know if the changes were positive and what more could be done to improve this and other festivals in the future. Festival organizers really do want your input!

The Institute

The dances chosen for the Institute on Saturday afternoon were the most popular from each teacher who taught at Stockton Folk Dance Camp this past summer (6-7 of them, time permitting). Even if you've already learned some of the dances at your local dance club or class, come to the Institute and learn the others. You might learn a dance that your local club had not thought about teaching but, with your positive input, might reconsider. This is also a chance to meet and learn from teachers who might be new to you and support the Federation institutes in general.

Federation Meeting

I hope you'll consider coming early (11:00 AM) on Saturday for the Federation Board meeting. Among other things, we'll be getting an update on recent efforts to publicize folk dancing, discussing ideas concerning how and where to advertise in the future, see what progress is being made on obtaining 501(c)(3) status for the Federation, and talking about a possible new festival in May (The President's Ball). Although non-Board members cannot vote, your input is always welcome and encouraged. And who knows: perhaps you'll be inspired to get more involved in Federation activities and join a Federation committee.

"Oh, I don't generally go to Federation events."

I have actually heard this statement from several people when I've talked to them about attending the Heritage Festival! "Why not?" I ask them. There are a lot of reasons, of course, but one I find particularly confusing is "I'm not a member of the Federation." You don't have to be a member to attend a Federation event. Everyone, non-members and even non-dancers, is welcome to attend. If you have a really good time, you might want to consider joining the Federation, and then getting involved in creating and organizing the next Federation event. Believe this: the Federation is you and you are the Federation. If you are involved, you can make the Federation into the organization you want it to be. Your presence and enthusiasm and contribution make the Federation what it is.

Come dance with me!

What more can I say? Put January 15-16 on your calendar and be there!

BERKELEY FOLK DANCERS.

One last dance party for the year 2009 on Thursday, December 31 at Live Oak Park Social Hall at Shattuck and Berryman, Berkeley! Glitter and glow at BFD's traditional New Year's Eve Party. Featuring an all-request program from 9:00 PM to midnight there will be food and drinks to sustain us. All this for $5 for members and $7 for others. Contact our merry-maker, Judy Stonefield, 510-655-3074 or Lsche-me2@pacbell.net.

We will be "Cruisin' with Mel" for BFD's Inaugural Ball on Saturday, January 9. We will gather at the Finnish Brotherhood Hall, 1970 Chestnut, Berkeley. Departure is at 7:30 PM. Tickets for the cruise is only $10. During the cruise, new ship-mates will be welcomed, 2009's officers will be thanked and the new 2010 officers will be inaugurated. A jolly time is planned for everyone until disembarking time of 11 PM. Contact Captain David Hillis, davidhillis1@comcast.net or 510-549-0337.

BFD invites you to enjoyable weekend in lovely Monte Toyon from January 29 to 31. We are pleased that Charlene Van Ncss, an experienced ballroom dance instructor, will be teaching East Coast Swing. Here's a chance to learn swing and perfect a few moves. Besides it is fun and a great excuse to let yourself go!

Monte Toyon is a camp nestled in the redwood just south of Santa Cruz. Helgesson Hall has a beautiful wooden dance floor with a grand stone fireplace. The weekend begins with a delectable Friday dinner and ends with a satisfying Sunday lunch. In between the swing instructions will be held in the mornings and folk dance parties in the evenings. Saturday afternoon is free for exploring this area with hills, forests and beaches or the lodge nearby to nap.

Space is limited to 55 attendees. Rate for weekend is $185 or without the Friday night dinner $175. For further information contact Naomi Lidicker at lidicker@berkeley.edu or 510-524-2871.

BFD is not dancing January 1.

—Naomi Lidicker

Sacramento International Folk Dance and Arts Council—

We are all busy "buying" dances for the Scholarship Ball. How, you might ask, does one "buy" a dance? You donate five dollars to the Scholarship fund and then make your dance request. Biggest donors go to the top of the list. If you want to beat out your competition, you can purchase a "chirper" (little birdie sticker) for one dollar to put next to your request, and it will move up the list. Roy Butler keeps it all straight when the buying gets heated. Proceeds go to send dancers to a dance camp next summer.

The date is Saturday, January 30, at the IOOF Hall, 467 Main St., Placerville. This is a historic building in downtown Placerville and it has the most amazing floor ever! It is impossible not to dance on that floor. It seems to move to the music all by itself! Doors open at 5:30 and the potluck starts at 6:00. There is a $5.00 admission charge.

At 6:45 the young people of Tance El Dorado will perform for us. Be sure to bring some money for Tance's bake sale (which you can donate to the potluck if you wish.)

At 7:00 - 7:30 local teachers will teach some easy dances to open the party.

Come early and have fun doing your Christmas shopping in Placerville before the party! Details on our website <http://folkdancesac.org/>

Don't forget to correct your date for this year's Camellia Festival! It will be March 12, 13, and 14. It is shaping up to be a wonderful weekend! Chubritza will be playing for the Saturday party! (Need I say more?) Jaap Leegwater will be teaching Bulgarian, and Yvonne and Andre Couvillion be teaching couple dances. Plan to stay for the Sunday Concert. It is always a great show! For all the details and any updates, go to www.folkdancesac.org —Barbara Malakoff

Hints for Accommodations at Statewide 2010—Sonoma

Editor: Reminder—the Statewide committee has reserved a number of rooms in Santa Rosa at The Saudman Inn/Motel at 3421 Cleveland Avenue, Santa Rosa. The Inn is located just off Highway 101, not far from the exit for Highway 12, which leads to Sonoma. Sonoma is approximately 30 minutes away. Their telephone number is (707) 293-2100. The cost of a room in this facility is $95.50, plus tax, totaling $103.01 per night. Breakfast is included. There are two queen sized beds per room. Mention the code "FOLK" to get this special rate. The Inn will be holding the rooms for our group until May 14, when any unused rooms will be released to the general public. Here's a link to their website: www.sandmansantarosa.com

Also, there are reviews you can read about this facility at Trip Advisor: http://www.tripadvisor.com/Hotel_Review-g33055-d577309-Reviews-Sandman_Motel-Santa_Rosa_Sonoma_County_California.html

ANOTHER EVEN LESS EXPENSIVE ALTERNATIVE: there is a Motel 6 near the Sandman at 3145 Cleveland Avenue. The cost is around $70.00. We have no reviews of this unit. Phone 707-525-9010.

Marcel Vinokur – Part Three

OUTSIDE EVENTS SHAPE A FOLK DANCE CAREER

By Loui Tucker

This is a continuation of the interview that began in the November 2009 issue of Let's Dance! magazine. As before, this is not a word-for-word transcript, but is based on the interview and written materials provided by Marcel.]

At the end of 1970, Marcel was teaching one class on Wednesdays at the Menlo Park Recreation Center, plus one class at U.C. Santa Cruz on Fridays. In addition to his job at Lockheed Marcel also taught a graduate class one morning a week at Santa Clara University.

Lavoffs at Lockheed: The first outside event that pushed Marcel into teaching folk dance was being laid off from Lockheed in February 1971. With a family to support, Marcel had to find another source of income. Kathy had taught school before she stopped to raise a family, but there were no openings for teachers at that time. Fortunately, there was a great demand for folk dance classes.

The Wednesday class in Menlo Park had lots of experienced dancers, and it was difficult to get beginners to attend, so Marcel started a beginning-intermediate class on Tuesdays at the Recreation Center that summer, and converted the Wednesday class to an advanced class. Also in the summer of 1971, Marcel started teaching a class for Foothill College on Mondays. Dances being taught in those years included Gerakina, Setnja, Sweet Girl, Laz Bar, Machar, Hora Pe Gheata, and Horehronsky Cardas.

Attendance in these classes increased rapidly. At its peak registration was 80 in the beginning class, 80 in the intermediate, 60 in the advanced class, and 140 at Foothill. Marcel also briefly had classes at the College of San Mateo 1972-73, and West Valley College in 1974.

Burgess Gymnasium Goes Up in Flames. The other event that impacted Marcel and the folk dance scene occurred on July 22, 1971, when Burgess Gymnasium burned down. Marcel had a party scheduled there on July 24 and expected a large crowd (typically 60-80 dancers). He asked for and was granted permission to use the Recreation Center. To accommodate the expected crowd, Marcel planned to use both rooms, using two speakers connected to one record player. That afternoon it occurred to him that he could play a different dance in each room if he used two record players. This could also solve the problem of how to accommodate dancers of various abilities and interests at one party.

A unique dance event was born that night, and has continued as a monthly event ever since, attracting dancers from all over the San Francisco Bay Area. The lobby between the two rooms was available for people to socialize. Kathy baked cakes and served refreshments. Later Kathy and Marcel organized potluck dinners at various people's homes before each party, which provided an opportunity for new and old dancers to get to know each other.

Marcel's very popular New Year's Eve parties had already started the previous year at a different location, and moved to Recreation Center in 1971. They became a fixture on the Bay Area folk dance scene. Again, Kathy made a variety of dishes, along with a special punch. With the help of others, the dance rooms and lobby were decorated. These New Years Eve parties became a sort of reunion event for many who gather each year to catch up with dancing friends.

Stockton Folk Dance Camp and Other Seminars and Workshops. Before 1971, with the exception of two years that he attended Mendocino Folklore Camp, Marcel learned all his dances at the annual Kolo Festival, occasional seminars at Stanford and various workshops throughout the Bay Area (some of which he sponsored). Since Marcel was now teaching many classes, he needed to expand his learning opportunities.

Marcel obtained a scholarship to attend the second week in Stockton in 1971. Atanas Kolarovski was one of the teachers, but he arrived with a brand new LP of dances, but no dance notations. Marcel, assisted by Ruth Miller, had the job of writing up Atanas' dances as he taught them that week. Those dances notations were later included with the LP. Marcel continued to attend Stockton until 1981 and many of his dancers also started to attend. In fact, one year Marcel and his dancers constituted the largest contingent at Stockton Folk Dance Camp. Marcel stopped attending Stockton primarily because his children were grown and he and Kathy wanted to take extended vacations in Europe each summer.

Beginning in 1972 Marcel convinced U.C.-Santa Cruz to send him to the Aman Institute in Los Angeles. For the next four years, after each institute, Marcel taught the Aman dances at two successive weekends in Menlo Park, as a sort of Aman Institute North.

Another important out-of-town venue was the North-South Teachers Seminar, started by Dean Linscott in 1972 in Carmel Valley. The purpose of this seminar was to bring together folk dance teachers from northern and southern California where two master teachers (one for couple dances and one for line dances) would teach dances they had previously introduced and provide an opportunity to polish them and to learn teaching techniques. This seminar eventually moved to Monte Toyon in Aptos. After Dean Linscott gave up running it, a committee consisting of both northern and southern California teachers has continued to run it, though the format has changed over time. With the exception of a couple of years, Marcel has attended all of them.

Marcel, Stan and Ruth. Another attempt to bring together dancers from northern and southern California was the San Luis Obispo Israeli Institute, and Marcel played an important role in its inception. This institute brought together Stan Isaacs, Ruth Browns and Marcel. These three local dance teachers followed similar folk dance paths, starting on the East Coast with an interest in both Balkan and Israeli dancing and moving to the Bay Area, where the three of them played important roles, and intersected often (See sidebars).

In the spring of 1973, Ruth Browns called a meeting to discuss the Israeli dance situation in California. There were many new Israeli dances that had come out, but some of them were done differently in northern and southern California. Ruth wanted to have an Israeli dance camp where teachers and dancers from all over California could learn the dances directly from the choreographers or other reputable teachers. Ruth knew Stan planned to visit California that summer, and could be the first teacher.

Marcel and Kathy had a close friend who was then teaching at Cal Poly in San Luis Obispo. During visits there, Marcel got to know the person who led the small folk dance group there. Marcel was therefore able to arrange for the San Luis Obispo Folk Dancers to sponsor the Israeli Institute. On short notice, Ruth contacted some of the southern California Israeli teachers, and the first Israeli Institute was born.

Dancing on The Deck. Another important dance event started by Marcel (in which Shirley Eastman played an important role) was the dance weekends at Bill Robson's Japanese garden. Shirley, having become very interested in Greek dancing, started a women's Greek exhibition group. In 1972 she attended a Greek workshop held in Half Moon Bay at a facility with a small wooden deck. One person who also attended that day was Bill Robson, a materials engineer at Ampex, who owned a Japanese garden in Saratoga. He observed, "I can do better than this!"

Bill, himself a casual folk dancer, decided to build a larger wooden deck overlooking his Japanese garden. Shirley invited Marcel and Kathy to attend the first weekend dance workshop and, as a result, Bill met Marcel and invited him to teach subsequent dance workshops there. Beginning in 1972 the workshops were only held during the summer, but participants voted to continue it year round, once a month. This was made possible because Marcel changed his Santa Cruz class from Friday to Thursday. Those dance weekends, at the Bill Robson's Japanese garden, involving 25-35 dancers, continued until 1983.

Marcel taught all day Saturday and Sunday morning from a list of request teaching. Bill served breakfast on Sunday and cooked steaks for dinner on Saturday. Kathy spent all Friday evening preparing salads, desserts, appetizers, and everything else. Participants brought sleeping bags and slept in their favorite places in the garden. After dinner on Saturday there was a dance party and then most people retired to a large hot tub that Bill had built.

Two members of Marcel's class who owned property in the Santa Cruz Mountains also decided to build wooden decks and sponsor weekend "folk-dance-cum-camping" events. The first was Hiram Pierce, who named his place Planina; those weekend dance events ran from 1972 until 1992. They were generally held on holiday weekends, and consisted of some teaching by local teachers. Marcel loaned his record collection in the beginning and did some of the teaching. One year, though, the guest teacher was Vyts Beliajus, one of the founders of the folk dance movement!

The other "dancing on the deck" takes place on property owned by Cliff Jenkins, also in the Santa Cruz Mountains. Cliff started holding weekend dance camp-outs in 1981 (once a year, until 1985 when it became twice a year), and they are still taking place, allowing dancers to camp and enjoy dancing, singing, and live music for all ages on a large outdoor deck. For about a dozen years this camp alternated with Planina in having events on Memorial and Labor Day weekends so the dancing community was not divided.

Adding Scottish Dances to the Mix. Before 1971, Marcel taught two Scottish dances: Rest and Be Thankful and Mairi's Wedding. Marcel would tell you himself that he wasn't exactly a Scottish dance aficionado. What got him hooked was when he learned Polharrow Burn and started teaching it in February 1971. It went over surprisingly well with his largely Balkan-oriented class.

Dance is movement in time and space. Balkan dances emphasize the "time" aspect. Since his work is of a mathematical nature, and geometry plays a big role in his research, Marcel was intrigued by the interesting geometric patterns found in Scottish dances. Folk dancers who attended his classes in those days enjoyed both types of dances. (In checking his data, Marcel found he taught both Ludo Kopano and Polharrow Burn on the same evening!)

Once Marcel started attending Stockton, he learned many more Scottish dances from Stewart Smith. Since they take a long time to teach in a regular class, and he was learning so many, Marcel started to have a Scottish workshop every quarter on an afternoon of the monthly party. He taught four dances each time, and there would be as many as six sets at some workshops. Later, when he increased the Scottish workshops to once a month, he taught only 3 (only three!?) dances per workshop.

Still later, in 1989, the Scottish workshops were converted to "Advanced Dances" workshops. This hiatus from Scottish dances lasted until 1996, when Marcel resumed teaching Scottish dances in his weekly classes where he maintains 14 Scottish dances in his repertoire.

The Decline in Popularity. In the mid-1980s, the decline in interest in folk dancing finally affected Marcel's classes, but by that time Marcel had a larger contract from NASA Ames, and Kathy was finally able to obtain a teaching job in San Carlos, so Marcel did not have to rely on folk dancing for all his income. In the spring of 1985 Marcel gave up the Wednesday advanced class because of diminishing attendance.

The Monday Foothill class had moved several times to increasingly smaller venues, from a gym, to a dance studio, to the Jewish Community Center in south Palo Alto, to a multi-purpose room under sponsorship of the Los Altos Recreation Dept. In 2004, Marcel decided to close that class and combine it with his Tuesday Menlo Park class.

Marcel made the switch from LPs to mini-discs in the early 1990s through the efforts of Andy Kacsmar, also a long-time dance student. Over the course of many months, Andy moved the music on Marcel's entire record collection to this smaller, lighter, more transportable format. Andy has also been responsible for acquiring and maintaining the amplifiers, mixers and speakers, and he assists Marcel at the monthly parties. There is even some talk of switching Marcel to a computer.

By this time, the absence of Marcel's many classes was made up for by the existence of other classes taught by his former students. For example, Suzanne Rocca Butler became a prominent folk dance teacher in the area. She also served on the Stockton Folk Dance Camp Committee and taught a class there in line dance techniques. After taking over the Palo Alto Folk dancers, she started her own class on Wednesdays, which is currently meeting in Atherton.

Loui Tucker started her class in Saratoga in 1980, and in some sense has been a replacement for Marcel's Foothill and Santa Cruz classes. Loui also has class specializing in the dances of Israel on Mondays in Sunnyvale.

The Thursday "Mostly Balkan" class, currently taught by Todd Wagner and Suzanne, serves as a replacement for his advanced class. Most of the older dances that they do are dances that Marcel first introduced.

Todd Wagner teaches the only Hungarian class in the Bay area on Wednesday in Menlo Park. Other former dance students who became teachers but who no longer have their own class include John Nicoara who taught for many years in the Peninsula, Martin Frost who taught at Mostly Balkan, and Debbie Wenokur who taught an Israeli class. Outside of the Peninsula there are Alan Rothchild in Santa Cruz, Bill Croft in Albuquerque, Eddie Cordray in Ohio.

Everything that Marcel and Kathy have done in folk dancing has been motivated by their desire to build a single dance community, something more important than the dances themselves. For the two of them, it is all about being part of a community that brings people together.

There is the argument that, by doing only one type of dance (e.g. Balkan, Hungarian, Israeli, Scottish), one can become more proficient in that genre. The hidden, double-edged sword is that specializing in one type of dance provides a sense of community for members of that community, but it also isolates them from each other.

On the other hand, variety is said to be the spice of life, and many dancers enjoy having the variety provided in Marcel's classes. He said he has been tempted at times to restrict the kinds of dances that he teaches in order to gain more participation, but decided that would undermine the reason why he teaches folk dancing.

These interviews with Marcel have shown that he has played a key role in and has had a profoundly important influence on our local international folk dance community. Even if you have never taken one of his classes or attended one of his parties, the next time you see Marcel at a dance event, take a moment to express your appreciation for all he has done and continues to do to make this form of dance a part of our lives.

THE THREE "DANCE"-ATEERS! Marcel, Stan, and Ruth

Marcel, Stan, and Ruth all started dancing on the East Coast and moved to the San Francisco Bay Area in the late 50s-early 60s. They each became important in the folk dance community as they interacted, share students, and shaped the folk dance scene.

Stan Isaacs grew up in Washington, D.C. and attended Antioch College in Ohio. He became a principal teacher of their folk dance group in 1958. He graduated in 1962, worked in Washington, and led a group there. Since his parents lived in NYC, he danced there frequently, and gave some dance workshops.

In 1964 he moved to San Francisco, partly to establish residency so he could attend graduate school at UC Berkeley, but decided he liked programming so much he gave up the idea of school. He taught at the Kolo Festival that year and taught a class in San Francisco. Stan got a job in a computer company in Palo Alto, and moved there in 1965. That year Stan took over Ruth Browns' class, and moved it to a church in south Palo Alto. It became a magnet for teenagers while Marcel's class was more structured and geared toward experienced adult dancers. Marcel remembers that parents would drop their teenagers at Stan's class, go to a movie, and pick them up a few hours later.

In 1971 Stan was also laid off from his job, and decided to take a job in Israel, where he learned all the latest Israeli dances. It was on a visit to California in the summer of 1973 that he became the first teacher at the San Luis Obispo Israeli Institute. He returned to Palo Alto in 1974, and taught a variety of folk dance classes, including for Foothill and West Valley (as Marcel had done). Around 1978 he along with others started a class called Panachoreon in Palo Alto on Monday. He eventually became interested in Vintage dancing and converted the Monday class to that type of dance.

Ruth Browns grew up in Canada, where she became very interested in Israeli dancing. She came to NYC in 1953, and started doing international folk dancing with Michael Herman in 1954. In 1956 she co-founded an international folk dance class called the Folkliners. She also danced with Fred Berk for a year.

Ruth came to California in 1958 to attend Stockton Folk Dance Camp, and moved here to California shortly after that because the San Francisco Bay area had become known as a hotbed for folk dancing. In 1960 she took over Rikudom (Israeli dance) when Grace West moved to Mendocino. Under her leadership, Rikudom became a large, successful class. It sponsored an exhibition group made up of its core members. She also taught at Berkeley Hillel, and taught at Stockton Folk Dance Camp for two successive years.

When Marcel dropped his Palo Alto class in 1961, several dancers asked Ruth to come to Palo Alto. She started a class at a dance studio in South Palo Alto that featured Balkan and Israeli dances.

In 1970 Ruth decided to emigrate to Israel, and gave up teaching Rikudom. After a year, she decided that Israel was not for her, and returned to the Bay Area, teaching a variety of Israeli classes. In 1973 she started the Israeli Institute at San Luis Obispo. In 1974 she married Dick Gundelfinger, who was one of her students. Dick had a business in Marin County, so they eventually moved there. Even though Dick died in 1989, Ruth continues to live in Marin, teaching Israeli dance at several places.

Let's do more REAL folkdances (part 2)

By Todd Wagner

In my article in the October issue of Let's Dance I was hoping to start a discussion about "real" versus made up folkdances. I was not disappointed! Whether people agreed or disagreed I sincerely appreciate hearing their opinions. In particular I enjoyed a long email debate with Loui (Tucker) and many of her thoughts are reflected in her president's message in this issue.

To begin with, I have no desire to exclude anyone because of their tastes in dance. My complaint is about camps and workshops that increasingly cater to choreographer's whims when the same time and effort could just as easily be directed to authentic material. Several people have pointed out that Hungarian (my specialty) is a special case. Maybe so, but the Scandinavian and Greek enthusiasts have also embraced authentic dances with no ill effects. One of my goals as a dance teacher is to make it possible for my students to dance if they travel overseas or to events sponsored by ethnic communities here in the US. (Here's a novel idea – ask Christian to teach dances from Bihar, a Romanian minority area just inside the eastern border of Hungary. He's from there.)

Loui points out that some dances are centuries old while others are very recent. Absolutely correct! However, I suspect that a dance that has been done for centuries will probably be around for at least a few more years. I've learned hundreds of dances that are no longer done (at 30-40 dances per year for over 60 years I estimate that Stockton has introduced more than 2,000 dances). I'd rather spend my time learning something with better odds of survival.

I'm writing this response here in Budapest and the folk-dance scene is great. Tuesday night we have a class on Kalotaszegi Romanian dances at a place called Fonó (www.fono.hu). Fonó is a club run by a bunch of ethnomusicologists who also get some government money to collect, transcribe and archive traditional Hungarian music. (In a Hungarian village the fonó was the spinning room where many of the girls worked. In the evening the boys would come by, sometimes with musicians, to sing, dance and socialize.) This dance class is 3 hours long, starting with a men's dance class for the first half hour. The ratio is nearly even and they rotate partners every few minutes so no one is left out.

On Wednesday night Fonó has a táncház (dance house) with live music, preceded by a 2 ½ hour dance class. They've just started a 16 week teaching of Kalotaszegi Hungarian dances (Kalotaszegi material is very popular) with a beginning class in one room and a "continuing" class (an intimate group of 120 people) in another room. Once again the first 30 minutes are men's dances, the ratio is nearly even, and they rotate partners. On the last Wednesday of the month, which is free, they bring in musicians (and sometimes singers and dancers) from the region where the dance they are currently teaching originated.

Every other Thursday night there is an event with Moldvai dances (typically 300 teenagers!) in one room and Transylvanian dances in the lounge at a place called Gödör (Gödör means "ditch". For several years the site was just a huge pit while the city decided what to do with the place.) Friday and Saturday nights there are always 2-4 folk music and dance events to choose from. Last Friday we danced to the Magyar-palatka band (from Mezöség). It was well attended, but would have been packed if there weren't two competing events the same night.

Amazing isn't it? Dancing 4-5 nights a week for over a month and not a single choreographed or made up dance. Dances that are interesting enough that the advanced dancers keep coming, plus a welcoming support structure for beginners. Several of the dance houses, including Saturday night at Aránytíz, have instructors running teaching circles at the back of the room. The experienced dancers dance in front of the band, while the beginners form a circle at the back (for some dances the teaching circle takes up the entire room) and the instructors lead them thru the basic steps. Whoever is next to you becomes your partner.

I would like to make a few more observations about responses to my earlier article. Most of the guys I heard from agreed with me, while women were more circumspect. The ladies' responses were more in line with Loui's. I think a lot of this is because "real" dances tend to be guy friendly. Guys have no problem doing a dance done by Greek men for decades. Some of the made up dances have a "girlie" feel to them that makes guys uncomfortable. I suspect that there are not a lot of guys in jazzercise classes. You can't have it both ways ladies. If you want more guys in folkdancing then you have to do more guy friendly dances.

One interesting demographic was women who have children or grandchildren that dance. They were delighted to have an activity to share with the kids and were not the least bit concerned about the origins of the dances. Actually, there are a huge number of traditional dances and dance games ("Let's do more REAL children's folkdances..."). Here in Hungary many of the events start with a children's táncház where the same musicians play while the kid's sing, dance, and play games. Both Hungarian dance camps in the US feature a children's program!

Finally, I want to point out that I do not wish to rain on anybody's parade. I want a bigger parade. Are we really giving people what they want, or have we reduced our ranks to only the people who want what we are giving them?

Letter—An excellent idea

Dear Editor:

Having just read the latest edition of Let's Dance! magazine from cover to cover, I am now placing it atop the stack of magazines to take to the Kaiser waiting rooms. May I suggest that after you've finished reading yours add it to the stack at your dentist's or doctor's office? It helps spread the word!

Meeting an Idol

By Eileen Kopec, Publicity Chairperson

(If you have an idea about publicity, contact Eileen at: eisiedancer@gmail.com)

I have two favorite non-folk dance songs. One is called "Come Dancing" and the other is called "Don't Forget to Dance". Both of them happen to be written by a man named Ray Davies, who was the lead singer/songwriter for the Kinks. They were a huge band in the 60's and 70's. If you listened to any music radio station back then, you will have heard of "Lola" or "You Really Got Me" or tons of other hits. So you can imagine my astonishment as I looked at the man seated across the aisle from me on a flight coming home from NYC a few weeks ago. I realized it was none other than Ray Davies himself. Was it really him? In coach?

Jewish readers will recognize the word plotz – as in what I nearly did (explode with pleasure). I immediately grabbed my iPod (after take-off of course when it was safe to use electronic equipment) and scrolled to the Kinks section. There I was, playing my favorite Kinks tunes with Ray Davies sitting next to me! Holy cow.

The lyrics to the song "Come Dancing" contains the following line: "come dancing, come on sister, have yourself a ball, don't be afraid to come dancing, it's only natural". I knew I had to talk to this man. I gathered my courage, then leaned over and asked if he was indeed Ray Davies. He broke into a huge grin and said yes. He was performing at the Warfield Theater a few nights later. After making a complete fool of myself gushing how much I loved his songs etc, I asked him if he really had a sister, as in the song above. He said he had six of them! I asked if they still "come dancing". He smiled and said yes, when they can. He said he does too.

Then he asked me why I was asking that question. I told him I was a folk dancer and teacher. He got very interested. He even said he used to do some English country dancing in his schooldays. We continued to have a lovely chat and he was sooo nice. It just goes to show that you can always have a folk dance conversation when you least expect it. Even with the rich and famous. Just talk to people – you never know who will be interested in folk dancing. And check out those two songs – I guarantee you'll love them too.

—Eileen Kopec

PS. I just read the interesting articles in last month's Let's Dance by Loui Tucker and Mike Lipsey. They are both sure to generate discussion, whether you agree with the comments or not! Discussion is good. Here's my two cents worth. If a dance is fun and people (read that as folks) like to do it, I don't care if it is old, new, choreographed, or if an 85 year old man from Crete was found doing it in his kitchen. I like to keep the brain engaged and challenged by learning new dances – they have to come from somewhere. Many of the older dances are great, but even they were new once. Eventually the dances will sort themselves out according to popularity. Isn't that what must have happened originally with the old dances?

Answer: All of the dances listed were choreographed or arranged for the international folk dance community.

Editor

REAL folk dances?

I have been enjoying the discussions, both in and out of the magazine about the dances that are being taught in the camps. Some of the more critical comments have come to me on a personal level from dance teachers and leaders who have expressed their distress at the number of choreographed dances that are being taught.

I asked one of my friends, who is an excellent dancer and teacher, why she taught so many made-up dances and she replied that these were the ones she had been learning at camp and didn't know the old dances. Is this a problem? Do some of our dance teachers simply not know the older authentic folk dances? Authentic? There's another can of worms. Let's open it and go fishing.

Several of my favorite dances are obviously not authentic folk dances, BUT, they do have dance step patterns that are rooted in history. Some were designed for dance exhibition troupes from the countries of origin, demonstrating the various dance steps that are/were done in that country and were subsequently described, written up and accepted into the dance community here. Others were assembled in this country, made up of authentic steps, and arranged into a doable dance pattern. These have the feel of being folk dances and have maintained popularity, at least in some venues.

Still others have come over to us from the square dance community (although not many in recent years). At one time, there were dozens of new round dances coming out every year and written up in the square dance magazines. Most didn't survive but some did, are fun dances and have been accepted by folk dancers. When I started square dancing, they called the couple dances done between squares "round dances". They don't do as many now as then and now they actually "call" some of the round dances!

I may or may not attend the choreography dance classes at camp, depending on mood. Several of my friends are very enamored of a couple of the teachers and I know they will bring back any of the dances they like. I'll learn them then or not. I often use the time to re-take one of the classes of the folk dance teachers (or take a nap).

One of the things that does bother me about the choreography teachers (and some of the folk dance teachers also) is the tendency to use the names of established folk dances for their new dances, causing confusion when people request dances. Do you want Ani More Nuse original or Ani More Nuse new? Which Tropanka do you mean? And on and on. I know, there are already different dances in existence under similar names, but that isn't any reason to add to the confusion. If you are going to make up a new dance, make up a new name to go with it!

Our Balkan Dancers of Marin attracts 100 or so dancers to our Balkan Plus party in March each year and one of the main comments we receive is: it is great to do the wonderful old dances! Yes, we do a few of the more recent dances but we know people come for the real thing and we give them a good dose of folk dancing.

Let us know what you think of all this.

Keep dancing, Gary Anderson

Aj lipo ti je

(Slavonia, Croatia)

Aj lipo ti je (AHEE lee-poh TEE yeh), means "It's nice." The song "Aj lipo ti je" belongs to the "Drumarac" type songs usually sung while walking to the field/party or home from the field/party. Sometimes they'll sing in the "kolo" too. Slavonija is the largest and most fertile part of Croatia's land. It borders Hungary and the Drava River on the north, the Sava River on the south, the Moslavina Region on the west and the Srijem Region on the east. For this reason, Slavonian folk traditions have remained unchanged for centuries. The wealth of this region is reflected in the dances, songs and costumes. Zeljko Jergan saw and filmed this danced in the village of Komletinci in 1990. Zeljko presented it at Stockton Folk Dance Camp 2009, at the University of the Pacific.

AJ LIPO TI JE

Lyrics

Translation

Aj lipo ti je kad se žito sije
lipo ti je kad se žito sije
Još je bolje kad se dvoje vole. /2x

It's nice to seed wheat but is nicer when you see two in love.

Aj fični lolo kad pođeš u kolo fični lolo kad pođeš u kolo
Janje medno pa ćemo zajedno /2x

Whistle my sweetheart on the way to the "kolo" party. I'll hear you and we can go together.

Aj lipo tilo rodila mi mama
Lipo tilo rodila mi mama
Još ga malo naredim i sama /2x

Thanks to my mother I was born beautiful but I still take care of myself.

Aj misećina upala u granje
Misećina upala u granje
Lipa večer za ašikovanje. /2x

The moon is shining through the branches.
It's a perfect night for a date.

Sop

Aj li-po ti je Kad se ži-to si-je - Li-po ti je Kad se ži-to si-je
Aj fični lo-lo Kad po-đeš u Ko-lo Fični lo-lo Kad po-đeš u Ko-lo

Jaš je bol-je Kad se dvo-je vo-se Jaš je - bol-je - Kad se dvo-je vo-le
Jan-je med-no pa će-mo za-je-dno Ja je - med-no - pa će-mo za jed-no.

Alto I

Ži-to si-je - Li-po ti je Kad se ži-to si-je
đeš u Ko-lo - Fični lo-lo Kad po-đeš u Ko-lo

Jaš je bol-je Kad se dvo-je vo-se Jaš je bol-je - Kad se dvo-je vo-le
Jan-je med-no pa će-mo za je-dno Ja je med-no - pa će-mo za jed-no.

Alto II

Ži-to si-je - Li-po ti je Kad se ži-to si-je
đeš u Ko-lo - Fični lo-lo Kad po-đeš u Ko-lo

Jaš je bol-je Kad se dvo-je vo-se Jaš je bol-je - Kad se dvo-je vo-le
Jan-je med-no pa će-mo za je-dno Ja je med-no - pa će-mo za jed-no.
